PREFACE.

THIS work has been called an alphabetical guide rather than an index, because it does not claim to deal exhaustively with the series of documents with which it is concerned. It has been compiled from various classes of official records, of which a table is given on pages vii–ix below. The documents thus drawn upon belong mainly to the archives of the War Office, but analogous material has also been consulted among the records of the State Paper Office, the Colonial Office and the Home Office. It has been arranged in two parts, general and regimental, the latter referring exclusively to items deemed to be of regimental rather than of general interest.

The arrangement of part i (the General Index) is alphabetical as to its main headings. With regard, however, to subheadings and individual entries, no advantage was anticipated from such a course, especially as the selection of an appropriate catchword would in many cases be no easy task and might even prove misleading. It was therefore considered that a chronological would in principle be preferable to an alphabetical grouping. This system has nevertheless been modified in certain instances, where the items assembled under one main heading are so numerous in relation to the period of time thus covered that a chronological division would have been of little use. Examples of this will be found under the main headings, “Crimean War” and “Peninsular War.”

Information of a personal nature is indexed under the name of the individual concerned. But references to an individual in connexion with his official position, e.g., as a commanding officer in a campaign or as governor of a territory, are entered under such campaign, territory or the like. Those individuals who are known by successive appellations in the course of their lifetime are, in general, entered under the title of the highest dignity actually held by them at the time herein under review, and not under that of any dignity subsequently attained. The same rule has been followed in the compilation of appendix ii.

Wherever the volume or bundle in which a particular subject occurs is quoted alone and no page references are given, it should be understood that the subject referred to occupies the entire unit in question or a considerable part. It should also be noted that the figures assembled in the page column do not invariably refer to pages proper, but must now and then be read as referring either to numbered folios or to numbered documents, according to the structure of the volume or bundle concerned.

In part ii (the Regimental Index) the several regiments and arms of the service have been arranged in the order of their latest—or, as to disbanded organisations, their last—title or designation. In order to facilitate identification in this part of the index two appendices have been prepared, which show the relationship, if any, between older and subsequent formations. This Regimental Index, with its appendices, thus has an independent historical value, dealing, as it does, not only with surviving regiments, but also with those which existed during or after the seventeenth century and have since been brought to an end, and with the colonial corps, the foreign corps in British pay and the fencible, militia, yeomanry and volunteer forces of the crown.

It should be clearly understood that the present work, having been designed in the first place for official use, contains references to certain records which are not open to public inspection and that the appearance of any particular entry confers no right of consultation of the record or records concerned. The State Paper Office, Colonial Office and Home Office material quoted in this volume is all open to such inspection, but some of the War Office records, being of comparatively recent date, are subject to the same rules and regulations as govern departmental records generally.

The present work was compiled in the years 1923–1926 by certain members of the War Office staff, the final classification and arrangement of the contents having been largely the work of Mr. G. T. Rogers, who has also constructed the two appendices. It has been seen through the press by Mr. C. S. B. Buckland, an assistant keeper of the public records. The Public Record Office having been asked by the War Office to undertake publication, the decision was made to include it in the series of Lists and Indexes, wherein a list of War Office records had already appeared, as volume xxviii, in the year 1908.

APPENDIX I.

LIST OF THE CAVALRY AND INFANTRY REGIMENTS WHICH RECEIVED NUMERICAL DESIGNATIONS, SHOWING (1) THE DATES OF FORMATION AND DISBANDMENT, (2) THE PRESENT FULL TITLE OF REGIMENTS STILL EXISTING IN 1929 AND (3) THE TITLES UNDER WHICH THEY APPEAR IN THE REGIMENTAL INDEX ITSELF.

NOTE.

This list has been compiled in order to serve as a means of reference only and should not be regarded as authoritative for other purposes.

It is arranged in four divisions, viz., Household Cavalry, Cavalry of the Line, Foot Guards and Infantry of the Line, corresponding with section A, subsections 1, 2, 6 and 7 of the Regimental Index itself.

Until 1751 regiments of cavalry and infantry were in general designated by their colonels' names. Appendix ii (q.v.) has therefore been compiled for the purpose of identifying regiments so designated under the numerical and other titles subsequently bestowed.

APPENDIX II.

ALPHABETICAL LIST OF THE COLONELS OF THE REGIMENTS OF CAVALRY AND INFANTRY OF THE LINE WHICH RECEIVED NUMERICAL DESIGNATIONS.

NOTE.

This list has been compiled with a view to assisting in the identification, under their numerical designations and also under their most recent titles (see appendix i), of regiments referred to in documents of earlier date by their colonels' names alone.

Although, in general, numerical designations were given to regiments of the line from 1751, documentary evidence shows that these regiments continued to a great extent to be referred to by their colonels' names even towards the end of the eighteenth century. The present list has therefore been extended to include all officers holding appointments as colonels of line regiments until 1800.
